

Chronicle from Tomorrow

Dear homo sapiens, To whoever is reading this, I will inform you of some very important information. Read this quickly and spread it around. The survival of the human race depends on this letter so this needs to be taken seriously. They call me Dorena. I live on Earth, just as you, but my Earth is different. I live in the future that you will soon live in if you keep doing the things you are doing to the Earth. I've never seen a tree or plants. I was never given the privilege of eating fresh fruits or vegetables. Our soil is so contaminated that we can't grow anything. Cars are banned because they polluted the Earth to the point where people walk around with gas masks. The worst part of all this is global warming. Millions of people died when the ice and glaciers finally gave in and flooded people's homes. It was the largest flood in history. No one expected it. There were no warnings. Only the look of fear in people's eyes as they saw the water rushing towards them. I saw the water stop for a split second, as if it wanted to get a good look at everyone's face, no, their expressions. The last look I saw on my parent's face was guilt. They didn't care about global warming. They added to the problem carelessly. They never thought it would catch up to them in the end. My world is already ruined but you can still save yours to prevent this from happening in the future. My world didn't have to become a wasteland. If only we took things seriously. Your world still has a chance so take it. I will give a detailed guide to preserving the beauty of the Earth that I have been working on for a few years. You don't have to follow this guide exactly or even follow it at all, but it is here to give you ideas to save the Earth. We need cameras around any body of water to make sure that companies or even ordinary people don't release their harmful waste into rivers or into our skies. My world had a habit of dumping waste in water and up in our skies, and now my world has no clean water to drink and our air is filled with dust. The government should make special garbage cans and garbage bags that everyone is obligated to use to control the amount of waste that is put into our landfills. The waste that can't fit in the specialized garbage can or bag should be placed in recycling bins or reused in their own homes. From all the garbage being thrown out, my world is estimated to be about 80% trash with only 20% being land. As I once said, farewell my fellow homo sapien. Please get this out to everybody. I have to go now. Remember to be a great being on this Earth and conserve the world's beauty so you won't end up living in piles of trash as I do.

Your fellow homo sapien, Dorena
