

Council For Youth

The concept of a harmonious world is a world where people of all communities can coexist without adversity, violence, or conflict. Through the establishment of a culture of tolerance, youth can contribute to creating a world free from oppression, exclusion, and discrimination. Today, people are still treated differently because of skin color, even if the law bans it. Even though America is considered a melting pot, in specific communities, cultures still stick together based on race and learn about and interact with other races and cultures. Juveniles should be given the opportunity to express themselves and value their differences instead of being shamed for them. Youths can work together to create a sense of direction and understanding and cultivate a more peaceful world and generation due to their cooperation and collaboration. By developing a culture of tolerance, youth can contribute to building a peaceful and harmonious world.

Youth and all other generations with a shared vision can brainstorm ideas with organizations with the same values. This will enable them to develop creative, innovative, and peaceful thoughts to build tolerance and respect for all genders and races. Gathering people with a shared vision of the world can contribute. Using social media and other technological avenues for benefit, such as TikTok or Instagram, can effectively bring issues to the forefront and educate a broader audience. This is to combat hate speech and violence. Sending letters and marching in peaceful protests can help too. Building relationships with nonprofit organizations can help raise money and educate for change. Furthermore, young people can learn about different cultures, traditions, and differences through experiences such as potluck dinners, which can help promote respect and appreciation for cultural diversity.

Furthermore, you can do excessive actions to help promote a more peaceful future for youth and adulthood.

The younger generation can work harmoniously to promote a peaceful future by wiping out older ideologies. In addition, they can promote peace and harmony for everyone worldwide.
